

IFP/Chicago PRODUCTION FUND 2010 Application

Deadline: October 2nd, 2009

The IFP/Chicago Production Fund provides $100,000 worth of in-kind goods and services, including film from Kodak, a Fletcher camera package and editing with Black Cat Productions. A full itemization of the 2010 services will be available at www.ifpchicago.org.

REVIEW CRITERIA

A panel of industry professionals will review all submitted project proposals and select the finalists based on the following criteria: artistic content, creativity of idea/script, demonstrable talent as shown by work samples and supporting materials, experience level of assembled team, highlighting of the Midwest region and its film community, and the feasibility of completion within the given time frame. The first review of scripts is done "blind" by the panel without the names of the recipient attached to the project. The panel will then select the recipient of the fund based on in depth interviews with all finalists. IFP/Chicago reserves the right not to award the production fund.

BUDGET & CASH REQUIREMENTS

The IFP/Chicago Production Fund, unfortunately, does not cover every production cost for the making of a short film. The filmmaker is free to obtain additional sponsorships on his/her own to cover additional costs. The budget submitted should include the estimated out-of-pocket expenses that the filmmaker expects to spend. Please look carefully over what the Fund provides while drafting your budget and consider what other line items you will pursue as either free or in-kind donations and what will be actual hard costs. In addition, most vendors sponsoring the Fund are located in the Chicagoland region. Your budget should reflect this fact and take into account accordingly, transportation, housing, and shipping costs. Also, do not forget to account for production insurance. It is a requirement and its cost should be reflected in your budget.
